

ABSTRACT

An image of lower spatial resolution is converted into an image of higher spatial resolution efficiently and highly accurately. For such conversion, pixel data is expressed by vectors in a color space of R, G, B, and not only an R component of low resolution but also R, G, B components are used to predict an R component of higher resolution.

BEST AVAILABLE COPY